The Editorial Team

From Center to the South: Retracing Korindo Group's Steps in Jakarta

Korindo Group first gained its foothold on Jalan Raden Saleh No. 64 in Central Jakarta

Via Inne Dongwha, a subsidiary of South Korean timber manufacturer Dongwha Enterprise. At its founding in 1969, the entity was managed by only eight staff members: four Koreans and four Indonesians. As small as it was, it later launched PT Balikpapan Forest Industries — eventually giving rise to the multi-industry corporation we know today.

The name “Korindo” was used after the establishment of PT Korindo Lamandau Timber (KLT) in 1976. Instead of the capital city like its predecessors, it operated from a rented house in Pangkalan Bun, Central Kalimantan. This place, both a secretariat and a coordination hub for projects, permits, and legal matters, was where KLT sought licensing for forest concessions (HPH), procured machinery, and did manpower planning for its factory.

Yet, the burgeoning growth of the enterprise soon led KLT and Korindo Group back to Central Jakarta, in particular Menara Cakrawala (Skyline Building) in Thamrin, where KLT set up its second office.

A Period of Integration and Expansion: Cokroaminoto Office

Fast forward to 1986, a new Korindo Group branch office opened at Jalan H.O.S. Cokroaminoto No. 108. This L-shaped building was iconic for its two entrances, which face H.O.S. Cokroaminoto No. 108 and Jalan Dr. Kusuma Atmaja No. 38. It had a workspace that extended to the second floor, as well as temporary living quarters for new regional employees.

A year later, the place gained official status as an “integrated” headquarters, replacing that on Jalan Raden Saleh No. 64. At this point, Korindo Group had expanded its operations across four main sectors: natural forest management, plywood, pulp and paper, and footwear. Businesses introduced in this period included adhesives, shipyard operations (for plywood distribution), and leather-sewing (for footwear production).

Towards Greater Heights: Setiabudi Office

Rapid expansion meant increased operational activities, and soon the Cokroaminoto office ran out of capacity. As the workforce grew and processes surged in complexity, there's an urgency to find bigger workspaces. Responding to these demands, Korindo Group moved to a new location in Kuningan, South Jakarta. This location happened to be the Setiabudi Building, one of the city's most modern office complexes at the time.

By 1989, Korindo Group's main office had occupied the fourth floor of Setiabudi One. In 1990, the company's joint venture Clemont Finance Indonesia commenced activities on the ground floor of Setiabudi Two. This move marked a crucial step in Korindo Group's transformation — pushing the company toward a more integrated management model — while reflecting its fast growth in the late '80s.

Meanwhile, the Cokroaminoto office underwent renovations and turned into a low-rise apartment building, which later housed Korean employees.

Welcoming a New Era: Wisma Korindo

It wasn't until September 1992 that the company, seeking long-term efficiency, saw the chance to have its own building. Around this period, Korindo Group learned that Sinar Mas Group planned to sell a new skyscraper, then under construction on Jalan M.T. Haryono in Pancoran, South Jakarta.

This skyscraper was meant to be Eka Life Building, an operational center for PT Asuransi Jiwa Eka Life, a Sinar Mas business. After inspecting the site and assessing its prospects, Korindo Group decided to acquire the building, whose construction was 40% complete.

Its internal team took over the project, and by June 1993, the 15-story tower opened as Wisma Korindo. "Wisma" was chosen due to a New Order policy that encouraged the use of the Indonesian language for business and building names.

Through the Property and Real Estate Division, the headquarters created a new income stream: office rentals. Half of the building space was leased to tenants; these included ground-floor occupant Bank Internasional Indonesia (now Maybank), and Alcatel Indonesia, the local branch of French tech giant Alcatel, which filled the second, sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth floors.

In its early years, Wisma Korindo also had a popular dining spot, called "Beverly Hills". The American-themed restaurant became an icon of modern lifestyle by the early '90s. Its name was inspired by the glamorous image of Beverly Hills in the U.S., which rose to fame thanks to the world-famous series "Beverly Hills, 90210".

At that time, Pancoran was a quiet, up-and-coming area, with only two high-rises: Graha Mustika Ratu and Wisma Korindo. The inner-city toll road had just consisted of two lanes. Amidst this landscape, Wisma Korindo stood out as the only Korean-owned office building, a symbol of progress and a source of pride for both the company and the Korean business community in Indonesia.

CORE VALUES

Zero-Error Execution

Results Prove Us

Over the years, our Group has thrived on its founding principles.

But with the changing business landscape and increasingly rapid market dynamics, we feel the need to sharpen our direction and refine our work standards. For that reason, we have redefined the company's set of values — not only changing the words but also asserting a shared commitment to transforming how we act, think, and work.

In this regard, we hereby announce our new core values to all Korindo Group employees.

Such values will:

- a) Inform our decision-making processes
- b) Establish the basis for performance evaluation and organizational culture
- c) Reflect our approach to serving customers and the market

We expect everyone to practice these values in their daily work.

1. What Are Core Values?

Core values are what guide our mindset, behavior, and work as members of an organization.

They're more than just slogans; they are codes of conduct that should be reflected in company decisions and actions — across processes like recruitment, training, performance appraisal, employee recognition, promotion, and customer service.

At Korindo Group, we have established six core values:

2. Six Core Values

1) Aim Higher

"Always set higher targets"

We refuse to be satisfied with what we have achieved. We continuously strive to improve productivity, the quality of our work, and company growth.

- Not settling for average, but aiming for excellence
- Always looking for ways to be better
- Being consistent with learning and growth

2) Action Over Words

“Real actions speak louder than words”

Execution is our strength. We demonstrate commitment through actions, not only plans or reports.

- Taking immediate action on an issue
- Focusing on solutions, not excuses
- Delivering on promises

3) Stronger Together

“Working together makes us stronger”

Individual success is important, but collective success is powerful. We actively respect, share information with, and collaborate with one another across departments for a common purpose.

- Prioritizing the Group's interests over personal or team interests
- Supporting and cooperating with each other
- Cultivating collaboration and mutual trust

4) Serve What Customers Want

“Giving what our customers need”

Our customers are the main reason we're here today. All our products and services must meet their needs and expectations.

- Thinking from a buyer's perspective
- Being responsive to market changes
- Making customer satisfaction a top priority

5) Zero-Error Execution

“Performing without errors”

Small mistakes can have a serious impact on customer trust. We execute our work with discipline, precision, and responsibility.

- Adhering to applicable procedures and standards
- Reviewing tasks before completion
- Not compromising on quality and safety

6) Results Prove Us

“Our results prove our performance”

Process matters — yet success is ultimately measured by results. We set clear goals and demonstrate our capabilities through actual work.

- Directing focus towards results and target achievements
- Leveraging data (including numbers) as the basis for evaluations
- Taking responsibility for one's own performance

3. Conclusion

These six core values are not only for the management to uphold, but also for all staff members.

By applying these principles at work, we as an organization will grow stronger, be more professional, and gain a greater competitive advantage.

Let's put them into practice through tangible, everyday actions.

Korindo Group Reiterates Commitment to Integrity and Fraud Prevention

JAKARTA – In a statement released on April 22, Korindo Group reaffirmed its commitment to strengthening integrity, fraud prevention, and compliance with local regulations. This move is part of implementing good corporate governance and tighter discipline across all divisions and departments.

The company, said HRD&GA's Managing Director Mr. Sunghoon Lee, will not tolerate any form of integrity violation. "All violations will be handled in accordance with the laws in place, in a professional, objective manner."

Integrity is foundational to business operations, Mr. Lee added. "We encourage all employees to uphold honesty, transparency, and responsibility in their work."

The official statement mandates all staff members to adhere to company rules, contractual obligations, and established standards. Individuals are also expected to remain professional, loyal, and accountable at all times.

Korindo Group strictly prohibits misconduct of any kind, including fraud, corruption, collusion, nepotism, document falsification, abuse of office, and conflicts of interest that compromise impartial decision-making.

"We'd like to emphasize that any type of gratuity, commission, or reward whose payment does not conform to our guidelines is a serious violation," Mr. Lee said.

This prohibition also covers the misuse of company assets for personal gain, price manipulation, and other actions detrimental to the organization. Korindo Group underlines the need for practicing openness and transparency, including in profit and discount reporting.

Any allegations of violations must be reported to the immediate superior, HRD & GA officers, or management. These reports will be followed up on through a thorough, fair procedure outlined in the company's bylaws.

Korindo Group ensures that confirmed violators will be subject to strict disciplinary actions taken in line with applicable laws and regulations. Through this policy, the company hopes to boost its culture of integrity, transparency, and accountability. (PR)

Jakarta Customs and Excise Office: AEO Certification Reflects Trust in BRJ

JAKARTA – Korindo Group subsidiary PT Bimaruna Jaya (BRJ) has been named an Authorized Economic Operator (AEO) by Indonesia's Directorate General of Customs and Excise. Obtaining an AEO certificate represents recognition for businesses that conform to customs regulations, maintain a proper internal control system, are financially sound, and adopt adequate security standards.

This document was presented to BRJ's director Mr. Taekyu Woo by Jakarta Customs and Excise Office Head Mr. Akhmad Rofiq and Jakarta Type A Customs and Excise Service and Monitoring Office Head Mr. Iwan Setyaboedhi Thursday (1/15) at the Wisma Korindo auditorium.

BRJ thus becomes the first AEO-certified Korean logistics firm in Indonesia. This status is mostly granted to locally-based manufacturers and a few logistics providers.

It's a milestone that brings pride and strengthens a commitment to improving service standards, said BRJ's director Mr. Taekyu Woo.

"Such an honor for us to have received this accolade," he said. "Your trust motivates us to do better, and so we will keep on improving our service."

Mr. Akhmad Rofiq, the head of Jakarta Customs and Excise Office, confirmed that BRJ's certification reflects this trust from the Directorate General of Customs and Excise.

The company was assessed based on integrity, financial position, and inventory system, among other aspects.

AEO-certified firms are classified as "low-risk" in the Indonesian customs system. This means easier customs procedures, and access to cross-border customs facilities under a mutual recognition arrangement (MRA). With such benefits, BRJ can boost its competitive edge in global trade.

"By [granting BRJ this] AEO [certificate], we're handing over part of our responsibilities to the company. We believe [BRJ can deliver] because BRJ is low-risk and has continued to fully comply with regulations, with zero violations," Mr. Akhmad said.

Mr. Iwan Setyaboedhi, who leads Jakarta Type A Customs and Excise Service and Monitoring Office, said he and his team are ready to assist the regional office.

Photo: PT Bimaruna Jaya's director Mr. Taekyu Woo received an Authorized Economic Operator (AEO) certificate at Wisma Korindo in Jakarta, Thursday (1/15)

"We're ready to serve the Jakarta Customs and Excise Office. [Thanks to] our status as a corruption-free, bureaucratically transparent organization, we can provide [BRJ] with the best service."

Benefits and Strategic Values of AEO Certification

Besides simpler customs processes, AEOs are entitled to lower inspection rates, faster customs and clearance services, easier communication with customs authorities, and more, through MRAs with partner countries.

These benefits make AEO certification a key instrument to improving corporate logistics efficiency and enhancing trust from the government and global partners.

Being AEO-certified, PT Bimaruna Jaya is expected to better navigate global trade dynamics amid supply chain efficiencies and increased flow of goods.

Its solemn certificate awarding ceremony marked a new chapter in the company's operations. The event also demonstrated strong public-private synergy in promoting a risk-free, transparent, and competitive logistics ecosystem. (PR)

Bimaruna Abadi Achieves Highest Nationwide Sales, Wins Best Gas Station Award

JAKARTA – Korindo Group's gas station company, PT Bimaruna Abadi, achieves a nationwide milestone with a SPBU Excellent Award in the category of "Best SPBU Volume Sales BBK" (Best Gas Station in Terms of National Sales Volume for Specialized Fuel). Last year, the company held the highest sales volume for fuel oil products sold nationwide, including for Pertamina's specialized fuels Pertamax, Pertamax Turbo, and Dex Series.

This achievement reflected a year-long dedication to maintaining product quality, fueling accuracy, and compliance with service standards. Having such a commitment allowed PT Bimaruna Abadi to both meet and exceed Pertamina's partner evaluation requirements — a feat recognized at the 2025 SPBU Excellent Awards Friday (2/6) at Borobudur Hotel.

Accepting the plaque was Director Mr. Jongman Kim, who said, "Our Best SPBU Volume Sales [BBK] Award and Excellent grade are a testament to consumer trust in the quality and consistency of our services. When a gas station receives top marks in quality, this means all its operational aspects have been maintained and standardized."

The "Excellent grade" Mr. Kim spoke of refers to the highest grade in Pasti Pas, Pertamina's partner audit program. Besides sales figures, PT Bimaruna Abadi was celebrated for its impressive 10-year streak of audit success and Excellent grades.

"[To us], this win means increased recognition of our specialized fuel transactions and sales on MyPertamina [fuel payment and consumption tracker app from Pertamina]. As an Excellent grade holder, we also benefit from bigger sales margins compared to those with Good grades, and gain greater public trust from our [quality] service and precise fuel measurements. These are all direct advantages [of having an Excellent grade]," said PT Bimaruna Abadi's manager Mr. Agung Prihasto Wibowo.

Pasti Pas focuses on "QNC", or quality and quantity. To pass Pertamina's quality standards, partner gas stations must possess temperature and specific gravity measuring devices, which enable maintenance of fuel oil quality. From a quantity standpoint, fuel measurements must be kept accurate and in line with applicable standards. Partner gas stations are expected to conduct regular care and calibration of their dispensers, including those with over 15 years of service.

Only by showing consistency in these aspects has PT Bimaruna Abadi remained an Excellent grade holder. This status indicates strong public confidence in a Pertamina gas station, particularly the upkeep and evaluation of its fuel oil quality, proper fuel measurement, and service standards.

PT Bimaruna Abadi is committed to maintaining this position by continuing to preserve fuel quality and quantity, in addition to providing first-class service to consumers across Indonesia. (PR)

KTH Engages Local Village Communities and Partners in 2026 Work Plan Implementation

PANGKALAN BUN – On Saturday (1/31), PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH) held its 2026 forest use work plan (RKTPH) briefing at the Mercure Hotel in Pangkalan Bun. It's an annual event that informs “trained villages” of the company’s operational strategies. “Trained villages” are villages that KTH empowers to achieve resilience — and are part of the stakeholders expected by this event to grasp KTH’s direction and share ideas for future CSR programs.

Leaders of each village were introduced to KTH’s vision and mission, yearly work plan, non-timber forest product program, and protected area management initiatives by Planning Division’s Assistant Manager Mr. Arif Suyono and Environmental Department Head Ms. Dinie Vevironica.

Accompanying them that day were KTH’s Vice President Director Mr. Jongmyung Park, Operational Director Mr. Hirotaka Sato, management officials, division leaders, staff members, contractors, and vendors.

“[We see] this briefing as both a legal obligation and a demonstration of our transparency,” said Vice President Director Mr. Jongmyung Park. He went on to underline the company’s commitment to sustainable forest management, “We want to ensure every operational move aligns with environmental interests and improves community well-being.”

Mr. Matius Kukui, who leads Batu Ampar Village in Lamandau Regency, said, “The impact of PT Korintiga Hutani’s work has been profound. Consortium roads [roads built by the company under a consortium scheme] have connected isolated areas and eased access to electricity, and we’re also benefitting from [the company’s] scholarship programs and corn-farming initiative.”

Riam Village Head, Mr. Dedi Simson, added, “PT Korintiga Hutani is central to our connectivity [to the outside world]. The company has been very helpful with its educational, [public] infrastructure, and religious infrastructure support.”

The strong company-community bond is deeply intertwined with a commitment to open communication and collaboration with the people, said Operational Director Mr. Hirotaka Sato.

“We hope to forge stronger ties with our trained villages through this event and smoothly implement our work plans with their full support.”

Employees and partner vendors then came forward to vouch for the company, with most recognizing KTH’s role in the local economy. An employee-only gathering closed the event, bringing staff members and management leaders together with fun bonding activities.

PT Korintiga Hutani remains dedicated to sustainable forest management, operational transparency, and making a meaningful impact on surrounding communities. (Humas)

Kenertec Power System Ensures Stronger Compliance with Environmental Management Standards through ISO 14001:2015 Audit

CILEGON – PT Kenertec Power System (KPS) is ensuring its environmental management efforts are structured, measurable, and lasting, in line with international standards. The wind turbine manufacturer conducted an ISO 14001:2015 audit Thursday (2/12/2026) with the assistance of third-party verification and certification body PT SGS Indonesia.

ISO 14001:2015 focuses on the identification and control of environmental impacts, waste management, adherence to environmental regulations, and continuous improvements in environmental performance.

Implementing and maintaining the certification for this standard are strategically beneficial for companies, especially KPS, said PT SGS Indonesia auditor Ferry J. Sianipar.

“[Having] this standard [in place] means stronger compliance with environmental rules, a more [positive] reputation among stakeholders, enhanced operational efficiency, and lower risk of financial and reputation damage.”

At KPS, environmental management initiatives are centered on hazardous and toxic waste handling. In Indonesia, this type of waste is commonly known as limbah Bahan Berbahaya dan Beracun (B3 waste).

Each part of the process is carried out in accordance with applicable policies and regulations, said KPS's Quality Assurance Manager, Mr. Rudy Hartono.

“We make sure every [stage of the] process, whether it's storage, transportation, or processing, is controlled and documented to comply with requirements and demonstrate our commitment to safe, comfortable working environments.”

At this audit, such efforts are evaluated and tagged for improvements, enabling pollution risk reduction, higher environmental awareness among employees, and stronger organizational accountability.

PT Kenertec Power System aimed for better environmental performance in addition to positive impacts on immediate communities and ecosystems. (PR)

Consistent Quality Control: How Kenertec Power System Maintains Its Global Presence

CILEGON – PT Kenertec Power System (KPS) continues to uphold its status as the sole domestic producer of wind towers with a strong global footprint. Throughout 2025, the company has shipped 62,924,649 tons of its turbines to major markets in Canada, the European Union, and the United States.

Much of this figure — which shows trust in quality — is accounted for by Canada (54%), followed by the European Union (37%) and the United States (9%). Such high demand from countries with strict technical and certification requirements proves KPS's ability to meet and exceed international standards for wind power generation.

The company first considers quality when expanding to a new market, said Production Manager Mr. Dede Hermansyah.

"As a globally-trusted manufacturer, we are committed to preserving quality at every stage of our production process. We're doing this by expanding our production capacity and facilities to ensure consistency in our products and higher trust from buyers worldwide," said Dede to the PR team at his interview in mid-February.

KPS believes product consistency is key to business longevity. It's why its factory continually builds new workshops; a move that enhances manufacturing efficiency, maintains supply stability, protects competitive edge, and safeguards product quality in the long run.

Photo: From production to delivery, every step is carefully designed to meet strict standards and laws on safety and quality. Aside from international projects, the company has been involved in the Sidrap Wind Farm construction in Indonesia's South Sulawesi Province. In support of local renewable development, KPS provided 30 turbines, powering more than 1,000 households and accelerating energy transition.

Acknowledged for its long-time presence and time-tested quality, KPS is cementing its role in the global clean energy supply chain. Its commitment to assisting sustainable deployments of renewable infrastructure is strengthened through increased production capacity, continued export expansion, and real contributions to domestic energy development. (PR)

Japan Embassy Delegates Visit Korintiga Hutani Site

CENTRAL KALIMANTAN – Minister of Economic Affairs at the Embassy of Japan in Indonesia, Mr. Kenji Enoshita, visited PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH)'s site with fellow delegates on Thursday (3/5/2026). The two-day event is part of efforts to deepen the strategic partnership between KTH and Japan in sustainable forest management and local education improvement.

Mr. Enoshita and his group were welcomed by KTH's President Director Mr. Hironobu Abe and his officials. Mr. Abe took the time to praise the dedication the guests showed to promote forest conservation.

"We greatly value your support for sustainable forestry and better education for local communities. This visit marks a crucial moment for us to demonstrate our sustainable forestry commitments and strengthen our key partnership with Japan. We believe support for local education is central to sustainability."

Day one had the delegates embark on an inspection tour of KTH's mill, community plantation forest (hutan tanaman rakyat) and protected forest area before finishing up with tree planting — a symbol of shared commitment to conservation.

On the second day, Mr. Enoshita's group continued their tour to KTH's nursery and Rimba Pelita Elementary, a school supported by KTH. The guests were greeted by smiling students and teachers, creating a friendly atmosphere.

"We're very impressed with how KTH keeps its forest areas as they are and supports local education. This synergy will not only lead to stronger bilateral relations, but also to positive outcomes for the next generation," said Mr. Enoshita.

The visit, which leaves a deep impression on KTH, marks an important milestone in the company's ties with Japan, forest preservation efforts, and education development efforts in its operational areas. (PR)

In this annual event, the company took home a Platinum-level Occupational Safety and Health Committee (P2K3) award and a Gold-level HIV/AIDS Handling and Prevention (P2HIV) award.

This year saw 240 candidates for the P2K3 category and 78 candidates for the P2HIV category. Winners were selected through a process spanning document review, interview, and signing of proof of document verification — the final step before awarding took place.

Consistent implementation of safety and health measures is foundational to safe, productive work environments, said Dr. Muzakir, M.K.M., the director of occupational safety and health institutional development at the Ministry of Manpower.

“We want these awards to drive safety and health standard improvements across companies, not only for legal compliance purposes but also for a sustainable work culture.”

On behalf of the awardee, KHI's HSE Manager Mr. Nurohmad expressed his appreciation. “Thanks to God that we have received another P2K3 and P2HIV award from the Banten Province. We hope more companies will follow suit, and that with continued efforts, they can enhance their safety and health standards.”

PT Korintiga Hutani Supports Sustainable Forestry Education Efforts at the 2026 Kalteng Expo

CENTRAL KALIMANTAN — PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH) introduced the economic-driving power of forestry and the concept of responsible forest management at the 2026 Kalteng Expo.

Throughout the event's run from May 17 to 23, 2026, the company showcased its sustainable wood products to a mix of residents, tourists, local business owners, and other forestry stakeholders. Visitors learned about biodiversity conservation, green industry practices, and the wise use of forest resources.

The 2026 Kalteng Expo was officially launched Sunday (5/17/2026) morning at the Bundaran Besar Palangkaraya by Central Kalimantan Governor Mr. Agustiar Sabran. It's part of the province's 69th anniversary celebration that also features the annual cultural festival Isen Mulang.

Mr. Agustiar gave a speech highlighting huma betang as a philosophical foundation of Central Kalimantan. (Huma betang, or "long house" in the local language, symbolizes harmony, equality, and solidarity.)

"By participating in this exhibition, KTH not only raises awareness on [environmentally] responsible companies which practice sustainable forestry," he added. "Its presence [here] helps drive timber industry innovations and economic growth in Central Kalimantan."

For KTH's Planning Division manager, Kalteng Expo provides an important opportunity to build relations with local communities and expand the company's collaboration network.

"We're also here to educate about responsible forest use. Our booth promotes sustainable wood products, educational outreach, industry-academia collaborations, and contributions to local economic growth and environmental awareness," said Mr. Redi Sugihartono.

Through this participation, KTH hopes to strengthen its sustainability measures while supporting developments in the local forestry sector. Furthermore, the company seeks to deepen the role of communities in forest management, ensuring a balance between conservation and community well-being initiatives. (Humas)

Korindo Group Holds Additional Tests for Female Employees at Annual Checkup Event

JAKARTA – Korindo Group ensures to regularly monitor the health of its employees through a collaboration with the Pancoran District's puskesmas on this year's medical screening. 483 people participated in the two-day event (June 17-18, 2026) held by Korindo Foundation. This screening included height, weight, and waist measurements, in addition to blood pressure and blood sugar tests.

Besides the basic physical check, there were also clinical breast and speculum exams to help female workers detect breast cancer early.

These initiatives demonstrate Korindo Group's care for its women workforce, and have drawn praise especially from Ms. Uun Magfiroh Putri (General Trading Division). Both exams allow for early screening of "invisible" risks, and are therefore important.

"I'm interested in the reproductive health tests since I've never had them before. Thanks to this event, I get to find out if I have reproductive issues."

Another participant, Mr. Fauzan Firdaus (Learning & Innovation Center), shared Ms. Uun's awareness of well-being maintenance. He sees regular checkups as a crucial step in health monitoring.

"[I'm specifically talking about] personal well-being, because well, we get older each year and it's through going to checkups that we can mitigate for cholesterol [and] blood sugar issues," said Mr. Fauzan. "The more we age, the more we suffer from illnesses."

But beyond tracking health status, screenings offer other purposes, said dr. Arina, who's in charge of the event. First, emphasize prevention over cure; second, detect risk factors for diseases that may not yet show symptoms.

"Aside from examination, our team provides education and feedback. We [also] encourage those needing further checkup or treatment to consult with the Pancoran [District] puskesmas or the nearest health center. [To ease follow-up], we provide them with referral letters," said the puskesmas doctor.

Annual medical checkups are part of Korindo Group's dedication to ensuring employee well-being. By working with the local puskesmas, the company hopes to cultivate healthy lifestyles across its workspaces and improve workforce health. (PR)

Bimaruna Jaya's AEO Status Cements Its Credibility as Logistics Partner

JAKARTA – PT Bimaruna Jaya (BRJ) is among the 34 companies awarded the Authorized Economic Operator (AEO) status by the Directorate General of Customs and Excise. This recognition marks a key milestone in the company's journey to strengthen its compliance standards, supply chain security, and reliable logistics governance.

The certificate handover took place at the directorate general's headquarters in Jakarta on Wednesday, June 18, 2026. Awardees — which hail from various sectors ranging from manufacturing, trade, to logistics services — received their recognition following a certification process from September 2025 to May 2026.

For BRJ, this status acknowledges its commitment to aligning business operations with customs, security, and supply chain governance standards. Companies are named AEOs when they have proven themselves to meet the requirements of a trusted economic operator.

BRJ's achievement further cements its position as a service provider focused on continuous service improvement. Previously, the firm was certified for its seven areas of expertise: transportation, freight forwarding, NVOCC services, container yard operations, warehouse operations, consolidation, and customs brokerage. Such a broad scope demonstrates support for an end-to-end, law-compliant logistics system.

The granting of AEO status is part of the directorate general's efforts to promote secure, compliant, and competitive trade, said Mr. Budi Prasetyo, the head of Public Relations and Education Subdirectorate at the Directorate General of Customs and Excise.

"With more and more businesses being recognized as AEOs, we hope to continually enhance the competitive edge of local entities in the global trade market," Budi added.

This latest addition put the total number of Indonesia-based operators at 210 as of May 2026. These include 183 companies running export-import operations, and 27 others providing warehousing, customs clearance, freight transport, and temporary storage services, to name a few.

With the AEO status, BRJ is expected to earn deeper trust from customers, partners, and stakeholders. Beyond certification, the AEO program celebrates consistency in building a work system that is in line with the law, secure, efficient, and geared towards greater competitiveness.

Moving forward, BRJ will continue to maintain a professional, transparent operational standard. The company also stands ready to deepen its collaboration with the Directorate General of Customs and Excise and its business partners to bring an increasingly reliable, safe, and globally competitive logistics ecosystem. (PR)

PT Korintiga Hutani's HR & GA leader, Ms. Rusmiati, praised the Lamandau Government. Tax compliance, she said, forms part of the company's commitment to operating responsibly and consistently with the law.

"We would like to thank the Lamandau Regency Government for the appreciation. We believe that meeting tax obligations is part of our corporate responsibility. [We feel it's our duty to] support local developments and public services."

The government's acknowledgment becomes a reminder for the company to continue respecting the law, strengthen governance, and run its business with accountability.

"This award reminds us to maintain compliance and good governance throughout all our business processes," Ms. Rusmiati added.

Korindo Group Employees “Dive Into Fun” at the 2026 Family Gathering

JAKARTA – Behind every achievement at work is the unwavering support of a loving family. Korindo Group acknowledges this, and honors the efforts through events like this year’s Family Gathering at the Ocean Dream Samudra, Jakarta on Saturday (8/1/2026).

Thousands of employees and their loved ones reveled in an atmosphere typical of Korindo Group’s social functions – joyful and warm. “Dive Into Fun, Together As One” brought tons of enjoyment and opportunities for rest, deeper connection with colleagues, and recognition for familial support that had propelled Korindo Group in its journey and towards its goals.

A speech from Mr. Sunghoon Lee, HRD & GA Managing Director, kicked things off. Mr. Lee praised the audience for their role in the company’s history.

“Through this event, we celebrate and strengthen organizational unity,” said Mr. Lee. “[But] today is also a moment of appreciation for all the family members who consistently provide help, understanding, and encouragement. Every success, every milestone [at the company] is inseparable from this support.”

Excitement escalated after the opening ceremony, where the event committee had prepared games. Laughter and smiles filled the air as employees’ children dove into the fun.

Their chaperones had a nice time as well; they too joined the activities designed to boost teamwork, communication, and cohesion. Together, the participants’ cheers and enthusiasm added to the overall energy, creating a friendly vibe that echoed the day-to-day atmosphere at Korindo Group.

Festivities continued with the highly-awaited door prize giveaways. Raffle numbers were called one after another, each one followed by shouts and applause. This segment was one of the day’s highlights for its surprises and mood-boosting quality.

Once the main activities were all finished, employees and their families were encouraged to enjoy the various rides and attractions available at Ocean Dream Samudra and next-door Sea World Ancol.

The young kids seemed eager to watch the animal shows, learn about underwater life, and explore all the educational and recreational sites. Meanwhile, their parents focused on relaxing and having quality time.

The 2026 Family Gathering was meant to celebrate all Korindo Group employees and their families. For the company, they had contributed support, dedication, and actions that drove organizational and business growth. Korintiga Hutani Demonstrates Company-Community Synergy with Observance of Traditional Ritual Ahead of 2026 Work Year

Photo: The company begins its work year with prayers and a traditional ritual performed with the local community.

CENTRAL KALIMANTAN — To mark the start of its work year and ensure successful operations, PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH) performed doa selamat (mass prayers for safety) and tolak bala (a ritual to ward off misfortunes).

Both ceremonies are part of an observance of local customs and serve as spiritual protection for heavy-duty operators and on-site workers throughout this year's logging cycle.

The events attended by KTH's director Mr. Jongmyung Park, management members, and contractor representatives — along with Demang Village officials, community leaders, and traditional elders — demonstrate strong synergy between the company and local communities (including the North Arut-based Demang) in promoting responsible timber production operations.

"We hope this prayer and ritual make work go smoothly and allow us to serve all our stakeholders long-term," said Mr. Park.

The ceremonies held Wednesday (1/14) at KTH's operational site in Lamandau Regency, Central Kalimantan were preceded by a Dayak welcoming dance, interfaith prayer, and ikat tongang — a practice symbolizing unity, commitment, and safety. A communal meal ended the day as a sign of camaraderie and gratitude.

"We highly respect PT Korintiga Hutani for its initiative to maintain relations with indigenous communities and [preserve] the local ecosystem. These activities reflect just how much the company is dedicated to ensuring work safety and sustainability," said Demang Village leader Ms. Murni.

Local community leader Mr. Sarwin shared this sentiment, adding that prayers and local rituals are central to Demang tradition. They call for protection and a smooth run of activities. "We hope all company activities can run safely and benefit everyone."

KTH believes success comes not only from technical planning, but also from the balance among profit, people, and the planet. The company hopes both doa selamat and tolak bala usher in a great work year, one that is safe, environmentally and socially responsible, and in line with local cultural values and nature conservation efforts. (PR)

Boosting HIV/AIDS Awareness through Education

JAKARTA – Whether locally or globally, HIV and AIDS (HIV/AIDS) continue to demand serious attention. In Indonesia, cases remain prevalent despite annual declines.

Yet, these shrinking figures show how impactful early awareness-building and preventive education can be. They're also why Korindo Group's HR Department organized an in-house health seminar on Thursday (1/22).

Dubbed "Health Talk", the event focused on providing extensive education on HIV/AIDS, with an apt title "HIV & AIDS: Cegah Sebelum Terlambat" (HIV & AIDS: Stop It Before It's Too Late).

"We want our employees to be better informed [on HIV/AIDS], on transmission risks, and on ways to prevent infections," said Mr. Budiyanto, an HR Department member and the person in charge of Health Talk.

Since it was first discovered, the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) has killed over 44.1 million people worldwide, said seminar speaker and K-Lab doctor, dr. Orlando. However, infection and fatality rates of both the virus and AIDS have fallen between 2000 and 2024 — thanks to better education and increased access to healthcare.

"HIV is transmitted through blood, including [that transferred] from mothers to children during pregnancy and birth. Having a good grasp of this will really help individuals take preventive measures responsibly," he added.

dr. Orlando went on to cover this topic in more depth. "This seminar gives me a lot more information on HIV and AIDS, like the myths surrounding them, types of treatment, and preventive steps. It's definitely eye-opening and helpful for us workers," said Ms. Michaela, an Accounting & Tax Department member who joined that day.

Participants are expected to leave with an accurate, complete understanding of the virus and disease, adopt healthier lifestyles, and develop respect for one another. Korindo Group is working through Health Talk and other initiatives to build an inclusive, stigma-free environment where every worker is paid attention to.

As a people-centered company, Korindo Group is committed to delivering health education and preventive programs to support employee well-being and long-term company productivity and sustainability. (PR)

Innovation Festival Award Wraps Up Innofest

JAKARTA – Korindo Group's three-day Innovation Festival (January 20–23, 2026) has reached its end with an award show. Studded with prizes worth millions of rupiah, the 2025 Innovation Festival Award celebrated employees who drove company growth last year through their innovations.

Featured was The 2025 Best BUNIMJO, a showcase of inventions with tremendous impact on company performance.

Subsidiaries and departments respectively shared their breakthroughs: lower urea–formaldehyde production costs for PT Korindo Aria Bima Sari (from Rp 4,808/kg to 4,647/kg), reduced losses from empty bunch pressing for PT Tunas Sawa Erma B (from 0.567% to 0.380%), and AI–based strawberry detection system operations for Korindo Headquarters' IT Department.

The Innovation Festival Award marks the peak of Innofest, providing momentum for stronger innovation and continuous improvement culture at Korindo Group.

Held at the Wisma Korindo auditorium, this year's edition had Vice Chairman Mr. Jinseok Mun bestow the awards — a gesture reflecting support and recognition for innovation from the Korindo Group management.

Categories included 6S Group, 6S Head Office, 6S Video Competition Head Office, BUNIMJO Group, BUNIMJO Head Office, SMK 3 (OSHMS), and Zero Waste Competition.

Every win further demonstrated the strong drive for collaboration and continuous improvement across Korindo Group's work units.

Innovation and performance are the cornerstone to sustainable growth, said HRD & GA's managing director Mr. Sunghoon Lee.

"2026 is a pivotal year for our long-term future. We must assert our commitments [to moving forward] through stellar performance and continuous innovation. Everyone will have to take part to foster a result-oriented, innovative, and solution-centric culture. With great enthusiasm, and unified by one vision and mission, let us walk together towards success."

The Innovation Festival Award drives home this point — how innovating is a responsibility for many and a practice taking root in Korindo Group's culture. With company-wide acknowledgment and management support, this event is expected to spark more innovations and improve competitiveness in the long run. (PR)

Innofest Teams Embed Innovation Culture in Korindo Group with Benchmark Visit to Top Manufacturers

JAKARTA — Part of Korindo Group's 2025 Innovation Festival (Innofest) was a benchmark visit to PT Hyundai Motor Manufacturing Indonesia and PT KAO Indonesia at the industrial estates in Cikarang, West Java.

The full-day event gathered teams representing Korindo Group's 15 subsidiaries that previously competed in the BUNIMJO contest. Staff members from across Jakarta, Bogor, Banten, Kalimantan, and Papua were treated to a demo of production machine and tool maintenance, while also learning about employee recognition systems.

This activity makes for a strategic move towards a stronger innovation culture across all organizational levels, said Innofest organizer Korindo Group's Learning & Innovation Center (LIC).

"We designed this visit to provide a picture of how manufacturing best practices can be adapted to the needs and characteristics of different Korindo Group businesses," said Mr. Setiyono, LIC's general manager.

Having a structured understanding of machine and tool maintenance is critical to operational longevity and company competitiveness.

"We want our Innovation Coordinators to drive greater efficiency, safety, and productivity at their respective posts [at Korindo Group's companies] through equipment [machine] and tool evaluations," Mr. Setiyono added.

Korindo Group has put in place the EPRO 5 (Equipment Productivity 5 Steps), a system rooted in Total Productive Maintenance (TPM). It features the programs of 6S, autonomous maintenance, and multi-skilled operator, in addition to "speed-up" and cost-reduction initiatives that improve operational performance.

With the takeaways from benchmarking, Innofest teams are hoped to further embed such programs and initiatives into work systems in Korindo Group. (LIC)

BOGOR – With economic issues remaining a public concern — especially for irregular income earners — there is a growing need for social support. PT Aspex Kumbong steps up to the plate through its staple food donations for nearby communities.

For the company's labor union, this move is more than charity. Leader Mr. Dede Suhandi sees it as an acknowledgment of the problems many Indonesians face. "We would like to share our support and appreciation for the initiative. It means a lot for us and has real benefits in the days towards Eid al-Fitr, when our needs are rising," said Dede on Tuesday (3/17/2026).

Behind these donation events lies an effort to preserve the company's relationships with its workers and the people it serves.

"This [initiative] is proof that both business and community issues are a priority at PT Aspex Kumbong. We see it as a positive step towards stronger connections with workers and communities."

Smiles were all around at the latest distribution, showing the company's presence is felt through activities at its operational locations and tangible assistance for neighboring residents. This moment has also brought the company, its employees, and communities closer in the spirit of Ramadan's solidarity.

Mr. Dede and the labor union hope the program will continue and expand in the long run. They believe consistency is central to protecting a mutually supportive bond. (PR)

Korindo Group Educates Workers on Grievance, Seeks to Enhance Transparency and Governance

JAKARTA – Korindo Group took a strategic move to boost transparency and corporate governance with an education session on grievance Wednesday (4/22/2026) at the Wisma Korindo auditorium in Jakarta. This move is part of an adherence to environmental, social, and governance (ESG) principles that ensures accountable and sustainable business practices.

The company's ESG Department has developed an integrated complaint submission system that enables fair, transparent, and systematic handling of employee concerns. It's also a crucial tool for maintaining public trust and enhancing corporate governance.

As organizational needs for addressing social and environmental issues evolve, improvements continue to be made to its mechanism. Since 2020, Korindo Group has gradually been strengthening the system and expanding its coverage to include all divisions. Submissions undergo a verification and investigation process that often involves third-party agencies to ensure impartiality and complainant safety.

Every part of the system is designed to guarantee all issues are followed up on and that these follow-up actions are executed responsibly, said ESG Department's Ms. May Caesarry.

"We want to make sure each concern is transparently handled and properly addressed. It's through this that we can build long-term trust,"

May added.

Besides constantly reinforcing the mechanism, the company is encouraging user participation. By teaching employees about grievance, it hopes to improve organizational understanding of the reporting and handling procedure, while building a healthy, professional work culture.

At Korindo Group, complaints or grievances are settled within a clear timeframe, meaning 3–5 business days for initial verification and up to 30 business days for investigation. Topics may range from environmental, social, to workforce, and each submission is later classified into “major and minor issues” to enable proportional responses.

The education session on Wednesday drew questions about prevention and clarity in investigation. “What measures can be taken to prevent workplace violations, and how long does it take to investigate a grievance?” asked a participant.

Respectful communication would be key to compliance, the ESG Department answered. As a commitment to transparency and accountability, the company has also established clear processes and timelines for handling grievances.

HR Manager Mr. Erdiaz Puja Rama saw this session as “strategically important” for the organization. “It allows us to educate our employees while deepening efforts to build stronger relations with them and benefit everyone at the company.”

Grievances may be submitted via the official grievance form on the Korindo Group website, by email, or directly to the ESG Department. The grievance form can be found under the Governance submenu on the Sustainability page at korindo.co.id. Submissions are treated with confidentiality and objectivity.

Through consistent system upgrades, Korindo Group hopes to increase stakeholder trust and reaffirm its commitment to integrity and sustainability. (PR)

Supervisory Leadership Training Set to Enhance First-Line Leader Capabilities at Korindo Group

JAKARTA – Korindo Group's people development efforts include the Supervisory Leadership Program (SLP), which equips staff-level leaders with leadership, team management, and managerial skills tied to operational needs.

This program covers two leadership approaches: supervisory and Gemba-based leadership. Participants learn about field-based (Gemba) management, allowing them to identify issues directly and make targeted decisions.

SLP also features sessions that hone coordination skills to ensure shared objectives ("Building an Effective Team"), improve personal productivity and strategic communication for management pitch ("Time Management & Effective Presentation Skills"), and instill company values and work ethics to build integrity ("Bunimjo & Core Values").

This year's edition of the mandatory program was held at Asyana Hotel in Bogor on May 21-22. Around 23 supervisors from the Head Office (HO), PT KHI, and PT KPS participated.

SLP adopts the 70/20/10 model, where 70% of the learning comes from project or on-the-job assignments, 20% from scheduled coaching & mentoring, and 10% from in-class activities (theory sessions and discussions).

"This model helps us comprehensively measure understanding," said Mr. Setiyono, leader of the Learning and Innovation Center (LIC), which made SLP possible. "We [gauge this] through post-test scores, the project assignments, and the impact of such projects on company performance."

Participants also found 70/20/10 helpful, with 78% giving an "Excellent" rating and 22% a "Very Satisfied" rating. All agreed that the sessions are "very beneficial and relevant" to what they face daily.

"The sessions were engaging and well-delivered. The training venue was also refreshing and cozy. It didn't feel tense or stressful because the speaker and event organizers were all calm and friendly," said Mr. Udi Sudiantoro, who's a production supervisor at PT KPS.

Average post-test scores reached 85.65, putting the batch's certification level at "Very Good". Few of the graduates even achieved full marks.

With SLP, Korindo Group not only enhances supervisory competencies; the company also lays a solid groundwork for its future leader pool. (LIC)

Aspex Kumbong Seeks to Improve Product Competitiveness with SNI Awareness Training

CILEUNGSI – Following its official expansion into the business-to-consumer (B2C) market with packaged tissue products, PT Aspex Kumbong is working intensively to improve staff understanding and competency of the Indonesian National Standard (SNI) through SNI awareness training for the ISO team.

Since entering the segment in early 2025, PT Aspex Kumbong has recognized the need to enhance brand strength through certifications and compliance with applicable standards. This awareness pushed the company to invite the National Standardization Agency (BSN) to speak at the event held Monday (5/25/2026) at the company's aula.

"We want to thank the BSN team for sharing their materials and insights with our ISO team. We hope this event helps our employees to better grasp the importance of standardization, and support company efforts to maintain and upgrade the quality of our products," said Ms. Nunung Nurzanah, PT Aspex Kumbong's health, safety, and environment coordinator.

SNI implementation is central to boosting product quality and competitiveness, said training speaker Mr. Azmizuhdi. Beyond technical guidelines, standards are a key tool to build buyer trust in products found on traditional and digital marketplaces.

"SNI is part of the key industry benchmarks that ensure manufactured products fulfill quality and safety requirements. Proper compliance with standards allows companies to be more competitive and strengthen consumer trust in their products."

Besides SNI's role in cementing product competitive edge, participants learned about the standardization process, the benefits of standards implementation for industries, and the evolution of standardization policies in Indonesia.

PT Aspex Kumbong itself has earned several certifications, including for halal compliance and quality management systems (ISO 9001).

Its tissue brands, Hadato, Ilova, Aspex, and Hadato Premium, have been certified by the Center for Industrial Standardization and Services for Cellulose (Balai Besar Standardisasi dan Pelayanan Jasa Industri Selulosa). These certifications are for facial tissue (SNI 173:2022) and toilet paper production (SNI 103:2022).

With this training, the ISO team is expected to have a stronger comprehension of standardization and its functions: refining product quality, promoting compliance with applicable regulations, and raising customer trust. PT Aspex Kumbong also uses this opportunity to reaffirm its commitment to delivering high-quality tissues, while protecting its competitive edge amid an increasingly fierce market landscape. (Nunung/Aspex)

Korindo Group Encourages Real Climate Action with World Environment Day Celebration

JAKARTA – Korindo Group commemorated this year's World Environment Day with a range of activities aimed at increasing climate change awareness and driving eco-friendly practices across its organization. Under the global theme "Inspired by Nature. For Climate. For Our Future" and national theme "Saatnya Bekerja untuk Iklim" (Time to Work for the Climate), this celebration encouraged everyone in the company to take part in climate action through daily, simple habits.

Its kick-off ceremony took place recently online, where the Korindo Group management called for climate awareness and collective action from all employees.

This was followed by office cleanups that involved leader and staff participation to ensure healthy, clean workspaces.

A webinar was also held to highlight the importance of demonstrating climate awareness through ways like reducing emissions. Employees are expected to gain more knowledge about what they can do to support climate action.

This celebration continued with mass tree planting, which symbolizes a commitment to supporting reforestation, maintaining environmental balance, and contributing to climate mitigation.

Addressing climate change requires tangible action and collaboration among stakeholders, said Ms. Dila Ayu Afifah, coordinator for the 2026 World Environment Day activities.

"We can't 'work for the climate' on our own. We need to work together and take real action. Let's make this day a moment to pay closer attention to our environment."

World Environment Day falls on June 5 each year to remind everyone of the power of people-planet balance. This year, it has a global theme of "Inspired by Nature.

For Climate. For Our Future" and a national theme of "Saatnya Bekerja untuk Iklim" (Time to Work for the Climate) with the hashtag #NowforClimate.

Korindo Group believes climate actions start small — through reducing waste, replanting trees, conserving energy, and keeping workplaces clean, among other things.

The company's initiatives for World Environment Day are hoped to sustain ongoing contributions to environmental conservation, while promoting climate mitigation efforts to create a better future for all. (*)

Celebrating Six Months of Appreciation: How KTA Builds Stronger Workplace Bonds

JAKARTA – A simple act of appreciation can be a powerful catalyst for continued progress. It's what Korindo Group seeks to cultivate through the KTA program. In the first half of 2026, KTA once again allowed the company to reward those who demonstrate engagement, solidarity, and contribution in internal initiatives.

Each month, from January to June, the program would award three employees who received the most stars on the KTA platform. Behind their recognition lay stories of unity, mutual support, and passion to continue contributing positively.

For Ms. Venna Megawati Alamsyah, who won the January edition, this award is not merely a personal accomplishment; it's a form of support for her and her colleagues to maintain their participation in company activities.

"Thank you to everyone who has consistently supported my work. This [KTA] program isn't a formality, but part of our efforts to create a healthy, supportive place to work in. I hope my win can motivate you all to give your best," Ms. Venna said.

Mr. Changwon Choi, the winner for March 2026, has a different tale to tell about his success. The award holds a special meaning for the manager, whose employment in Korindo Group has taken him to multiple regions in Indonesia — from Papua to Kalimantan to Jakarta.

"I would like to thank all my colleagues for their stars. Ever since I joined Korindo in 2010, I've traveled [everywhere] from Papua to Kalimantan, and now to Jakarta. This award means a lot, especially because all of you have been a part of my journey for 16 years."

It's a reminder that career paths are shaped not only by individual efforts, but also by relationships with peers and support that grow over time.

Public Relations Department's Mr. Hendri Widodo, the May 2026 KTA recipient, shares this notion. He believes that achievements do not exist in a vacuum, but rather are built through collaborations and encouraging workplaces.

"This award is a product of collaboration, team spirit, and an environment where employees encourage each other," said Mr. Hendri. "It motivates me to continue learning, improving myself, and making my best contribution going forward."

Their accolades show how a culture of recognition grows stronger when fostered collectively. Individual action ultimately generates shared energy, which strengthens employee bonds and promotes an active, collaborative atmosphere.

Through KTA, Korindo Group continues to nurture a culture that values every contribution. The past six months have been a period of reflection on the appreciation, support, and solidarity shared, while highlighting that all contributions are meaningful when made and honored together. In closing, congratulations to all KTA and Top Participating Division of the Quarter winners for the January–June 2026 period!. (PR)

Korindo Group Ensures Regulatory Compliance with Joint Education Session

JAKARTA – Korindo Group continues to focus on employee well-being and safety by ensuring each individual understands their rights and protections. The company recently linked up with the local Department of Manpower to provide an education session on grievance mechanism, while making sure Korindo Group's complaint management system is compliant with labor laws.

The event on Wednesday (4/22/2026) brought in a representative from the Department to inform employees of their rights and responsibilities, as well as "proper" grievance procedures that align with national regulations. Participants were also welcome to join a Q&A segment, where they could clarify information, share job-related concerns, and gain insight into the ways the Department approaches industrial disputes.

Earlier, Korindo Group's ESG Department had introduced its new grievance channel under the Governance submenu on korindo.co.id (found in the Sustainability menu). It's designed to be secure and accessible, allowing for easier reporting of workplace issues and concerns.

From this in-depth session, employees are expected to utilize all available channels for complaint submission accordingly, while cultivating an environment that's fair, transparent, and of integrity.

Labor inspector Ms. Made Dwi Sukamti added that all workers can raise a grievance as long as they are accommodated with clear, easy-to-access procedures.

“Everyone has the right to file a complaint. But what’s most essential is having the system to enable that, with clear procedures and [guaranteed confidentiality] so concerns can be shared without fear.”

Made and the Department of Manpower’s support was praised by Korindo Group’s HR Manager, Mr. Erdiaz Puja Rama.

“We’d like to express our deepest gratitude to the team from the Department of Manpower for sharing their knowledge and insight. This session not only educates us on labor matters, but also strengthens our bonds as workers and helps us contribute significantly to society.”

Korindo Group believes that understanding one’s rights and obligations is crucial for strong employer–employee relationships. It’s why the company works with credible authorities, like the Department of Manpower, to ensure any information shared with employees is accurate, reliable, and in line with established rules and standards.

In the meantime, Korindo Group is constantly refining its grievance system to create a safe space where complainants can come forward without fear of threats or pressure. Beyond serving as a communication channel, this system is also an early problem–detection measure. As an initiative, it affirms Korindo Group’s commitment to building productive, safety–first workplaces, which uphold transparency and compliance with employment regulations. (PR)

Local Manpower, Transmigration, and Energy Authority Delves Into Labor Standards at Korindo Group Seminar

Photo: The South Jakarta Department of Manpower, Transmigration, and Energy (Nakertransgi) explains key aspects of the employer–employee relationship.

JAKARTA – The South Jakarta Department of Manpower, Transmigration, and Energy hosted a labor standards briefing for Korindo Group employees on Thursday (6/25/2026).

Leading the briefing was Mr. Niki Ferdian, a member of the Center for Human Resource Development (PPSDM) at the Ministry of Manpower.

Mr. Niki covered key aspects of the employer–employee relationship, spanning from rights and obligations (of employees/employers) and their legal basis, collective bargaining agreements, to industrial dispute settlement mechanisms.

This event emphasized the government’s commitment to guiding businesses and workers in meeting labor standards.

“What we’re saying this morning is that we support the people, contrary to what people think,” said Mr. Niki. “It’s just that our capabilities are limited. So, any input or suggestions are welcome, and will be considered for future [improvements].”

Both Korindo Group and its employees are expected to improve their understanding of labor rules, so they can build strong, productive bonds with each other.

Having this understanding is crucial for balancing rights and responsibilities, thereby minimizing potential disputes and effectively resolving existing ones through the applicable mechanisms.

Participants later had the opportunity to discuss issues they encountered in the workplace.

“This briefing is useful, it’s informative, and helps us comprehend labor regulations holistically. With proper understanding of these regulations, I believe employer–employee relationships will improve,” said staff member Ms. May Caessary.

The event is part of government efforts to increase compliance with labor laws, strengthen protections for companies and workers, and cultivate healthy relationships to support productivity and business longevity. It is also expected to cement a culture of compliance and drive constructive resolutions of industrial relations issues. (PR)

Aspex Kumbong Enhances Mother and Child Health Service Delivery in Bogor

CILEUNGSI — PT Aspex Kumbong's Corporate Social Contribution (CSC) program has done wonders for maternal and childcare in Dayeuh Village, Cileungsi District. Tulip 2 Posyandu, the local mom-and-baby clinic, has seen attendance rise from 50% to nearly 90% since receiving support from the company.

At its latest event, Dayeuh children aged 0–5 took height, weight, and head circumference measurements in addition to dewormers and vitamin A supplements. Expectant mothers also benefited from health screenings tailored to them.

To keep these services running, Tulip 2 Posyandu is working with state-operated community health center Cileungsi Puskesmas and PT Aspex Kumbong.

"We've got midwives from the puskesmas to help with vaccines and pregnancy check-ups," said Tulip 2

Posyandu leader Ms. Ismaniah. "We're also funded by the company [PT Aspex Kumbong] to provide supplementary meals."

This money is used to improve meal quality and variety to make them more nutritious and appealing. Developed by local puskesmas, supplementary meals feature healthy ingredients with minimal processing and no additional preservatives.

So far, their upgrades have impacted engagement with Posyandu programs, said midwife-in-charge Indri Sari.

"Higher-quality meals are attracting more mothers to our events. We've seen participation go up to nearly 90%."

Before PT Aspex Kumbong, it was locals who mostly financed PMT — short for the supplementary meal service — through a voluntary fee scheme. The remaining funds came from the village government, and altogether afforded only simple meals.

It's what makes the company vital to Tulip 2 Posyandu's future, said Mamay Jamhari, member of Dayeuh's Family Empowerment and Welfare mobilizer team.

"PT Aspex Kumbong's support has been invaluable for PMT and Tulip 2 Posyandu cadres. The company is holding up the future of these cadres and the village healthcare system."

With help from its stakeholders, Tulip 2 Posyandu hopes to remain a frontline health service for mothers and children while boosting early awareness of check-ups at Dayeuh Village. (PR)

Aspex Kumbong, Cileungsi Government Team Up on Mass Tree Planting to Expand Urban Green Spaces

CILEUNGSI – The Cileungsi District government in Bogor Regency, West Java, doubles down on environmental preservation through a recent greening program set to increase plant cover and biodiversity across state-owned public and social facilities.

PT Aspex Kumbong took part by providing seedlings and drilling wells to support irrigation and plant care.

“We are grateful to PT Aspex Kumbong, [most importantly] Mr. Geuntai Kim and his officials who attend on behalf of the company. [PT Aspex Kumbong] has done its part for the district and today’s launch of this urban forest,” said Cileungsi District leader, Mr. Adi Henryana, MSc Friday (2/13).

The greening program is part of a broader strategy to increase urban green space coverage and maintain local ecosystem balance. It’s also aimed at beautification and education, through which children learn to be environmentally responsible.

1,200 seedlings were planted in two sessions: first at CitraLand Cibubur on Thursday (2/5), and second at Metland Transyogi on Friday (2/13). Around 450 seedlings were set in soil at the kick-off, with the remaining 750 rooted a week later.

This initiative may be a meaningful step towards greener, healthier, and more sustainable environments, said Mr. Geuntai Kim.

“By bringing together companies, governments, and citizens, this program can leave lasting impacts [on communities] and cement environmental awareness among the people.”

Friday (2/13) had the Cileungsi District Head leading the session, followed by members of the local Forkopimcam (district leadership communication forum), Danramil (military subdistrict command), and police force.

Accompanying them were the representatives of Cileungsi’s Environmental Service, Social Service, Economic Affairs and Development Department, and related technical implementation units (UPTs) — in addition to the Assistant for Economic Affairs and Development, village leaders, community figures, scouts, and Cipicung Public Elementary (SDN Cipicung) students.

Camaraderie and teamwork filled the air. The diverse range of participants demonstrated a multi-stakeholder synergy in protecting the ecosystems at Cileungsi District. (PR)

Korindo Foundation Builds Adaptability and Integrity in Students through Soft Skill Training

CIKARANG – On Friday (2/6), Korindo Foundation shared some tips on building better soft skills with the Hanuri Edukasi Centre in Cikarang, West Java. The working world has grown more competitive in recent years, with multiple generations of workers now inhabiting the labor force. It demands adaptability and bravery to move past comfort zones, said the head of Korindo Foundation's Learning & Innovation Center (LIC), Mr. Setiyono.

Photo: Korindo Foundation's "education and motivation session" Friday (2/6) seeks to equip younger generations with work-ready skills and confidence.

"The corporate world requires adaptability and a willingness to step outside comfort zones. Here's where 5Cs come in — by Crack[ing] Your Cocoon, Collecting Dots, Connecting Dots, Create[ing] Your Idea, and Creatively Selling Your Idea, anyone can move beyond [passive] job searching and begin to create added value [for themselves]."

This insight-sharing session is part of Korindo Foundation's Bina Pelajar Sponsorship program, which has continued to provide financial support, soft skill development, and mental preparedness training in its third year of partnership with Hanuri Edukasi Centre.

Speaking at this session was LIC's Ms. Ine Nurul Rachmi, who later engaged participants in a knowledge exchange and public speaking exercise. Both activities were designed to build social intelligence, professionalism, and integrity, the prerequisites for entering the workplace.

Hanuri students also participated in an impromptu interview that offered a glimpse of hiring expectations and standards for fresh graduates.

3D Design major Destara said she learned a lot from the event. "I've learned so much — good interview techniques, how to boost soft skills, and how to develop our abilities so that companies will be the ones looking [and not the other way around]."

Administration major Siti added, "It's a fun activity, and we get to learn new things and gain new insight. I hope Korindo Foundation and Hanuri Edukasi Centre continue to work together and pave the way for a generation of current- and future-ready talents."

The Foundation thus reaffirmed its commitment to people development and cemented its role as a key partner in building competencies, adaptability, and integrity to support industrial needs for job-ready individuals.

The Bina Pelajar Sponsorship Program funds mentoring and development for high school and vocational high school graduates who undergo up to six months of intensive training at Hanuri. Each training batch consists of 30 people, who will later enter a recruitment process conducted by Hanuri's partner companies. (Yayasan Korindo)

From Food Vendors to Ride-Hailing Drivers: Aspex Kumbong Serves All

CILEUNGSI – Monday (3/16/2026) morning saw people flocking to PT Aspex Kumbong's food kit distribution point in Cileungsi, Bogor Regency. Among them was Saiful, who gets by doing ride-hailing.

This donation would support him and his family amid Saiful's unstable income.

Speaking on behalf of fellow drivers, he said, "As online motorcycle taxi operators, we don't have a stable income. The money that comes in depends on the orders we get each day. So, these food kits would really help fill our kitchens. Thank you, PT Aspex Kumbong, for your support to the people here."

Many of the recipients view staple food aid as effective to cover household needs, especially in the onslaught of economic headwinds. This initiative proves PT Aspex Kumbong is paying attention to local communities — and it's making an impact.

Local food seller and housewife Anis Wartini said, "Thank God [for this kit], it would do us so much help, at least for a few days. We feel cared for by the company, and [for that] we thank you."

Saiful and Anis Wartini were two of the thousands welcoming the three-day distribution event on March 14 and March 16–17. Despite the buzz, beneficiaries — who came from nearby villages — remained calm as they took turns getting their kits.

Through this donation program, PT Aspex Kumbong hopes to impact communities in a positive way and underscore its commitment to moving in harmony with the people it serves. (PR)

Kampung Bayam Madani Preserves Agricultural Heritage Amid Urban Land Constraints

JAKARTA – Muhammad Furqon could say farming's in his blood. As the leading member of Kampung Bayam Madani farmer group in North Jakarta, he bases his work on a family tradition that preserves natural planting techniques and does not use chemical fertilizers.

"[My group and I], we never used chemical fertilizers growing up, but it's not that we're against them. [What we're doing] is honoring our parents' methods, [because] we believe they're healthy [for the plants]," said the man, who goes by Furqon.

Organic farming is more than a time-honored heritage for him, who sees it as a health-conscious, sustainable practice. His experience and the benefits he derives from it cement his desire to continue this custom.

Furqon and his team apply this system of natural agriculture to a wide range of crops, including cabbage, Chinese kale, cauliflower, and spinach. Once harvested, these produce are distributed to other residents in Kampung Bayam Madani for personal consumption or trade at competitive prices.

"We're currently selling to local moms and groups, but we used to supply vendors at big [traditional] markets." In the past few months, the group has harvested large quantities of long beans (7 quintals), corn (4 quintals), and other vegetables, in addition to dozens of kilograms of freshwater fish.

Photo: Farmer group leader Muhammad Furqon praises Korindo Foundation's support, which has funded their communal kitchen, waste recycling site, and polybag provision initiative.

Kampung Bayam Madani farmer group is working to maintain food security and had been operating independently until Korindo Group, through its Foundation, showed support. Their budding connection with the Foundation — currently the community's sole corporate partner — soon became a turning point.

This support has now funded a communal kitchen, waste recycling site, and polybag provision initiative. The latter aims to address the lack of this planting medium, which has been impeding farming activities.

Such facilities allow farmers to start maximizing the available land. One way they tackled the issue of limited space and infrastructure was using polybags to hold eggplant and melon seedlings.

Their years of perseverance demonstrate the robustness of organic agriculture, even amid land constraints and urbanization pressures. More than a system, it's a form of resistance; a way for farmers to safeguard their identity amid the surge of modernization. (PR)

Social Media and Teen Body Image Highlighted in Korindo Foundation's Latest School Seminar

Photo: Pancoran District's puskesmas nutritionist Hilga Tiara Dewi in a health seminar at Jakarta Public High 55 (SMAN 55 Jakarta) (5/5/2026).

JAKARTA – Korindo Foundation recently allied with Pancoran District's puskesmas (state-run clinic) to run a health seminar at three local high schools: Jakarta Public High 55 (SMAN 55 Jakarta), Perguruan Cikini High (SMA Perguruan Cikini), and Fatahillah High (SMA Fatahillah), over three days on May 5, 6, and 7, 2026.

The initiative is an effort to educate younger people on the practice of information filtering and how it shapes self-perception. Both Korindo Foundation and the Pancoran District puskesmas also aim to raise awareness of physical fitness and its maintenance through a nutrient-rich diet and balanced lifestyle.

"This event is crucial [in the work] to build resilience against negative thinking patterns and poor habits in teenagers. It's part of our education-focused Corporate Social Contribution activities at Korindo Foundation, and happens to coincide with National Education Day on May 2," said Korindo Foundation's general manager, Mr. Setiyono.

dr. Sri Lenita, who leads the puskesmas, appreciated the corporate support. There needs to be a collective focus on adolescent health, she said.

"[Youth, especially] teenagers, are our nation's hope. They need to grow healthy so they can lead us in the future. As body dysmorphia continues to affect junior and senior high schoolers in Pancoran, we hope to shed light on this topic."

Students were soon taught that beauty standards should not be solely based on physical features. The audience was also encouraged to be more critical of media messages, including the misleading idea of beauty and "perfect body proportions" perpetuated by social media platforms.

Ms. Hilga Tiara Dewi, the puskesmas nutritionist, said it's important that teens know which content to consume. This especially includes health and beauty content, because not all can be relied upon for accuracy and without proper understanding.

"In this era, you can easily access any information, even that which is harmful to your body image. That's why we need to be careful with what we see and read, and not accept things blindly. You don't have to be thin or white. What's most important is staying healthy and balancing your nutritional needs," Ms. Hilga added.

Instead of focusing on meeting physical appearance standards, the students may benefit from maintaining their physical health through proper nutrition, balanced eating, and positive lifestyle changes.

This seminar forms part of broader efforts to support teen health education in schools. By targeting three high schools in Pancoran, Korindo Foundation and the puskesmas ensured wellness is instilled early in life, and that students develop a healthier, more critical mindset. (PR)

Korindo Foundation, Pancoran District Puskesmas Collaborate on Body Image Seminar for Teens

JAKARTA – Together with the Pancoran District's puskesmas (state-run clinic), Korindo Foundation held “Redefining Beauty: Health Over Perfection”, which taught local teens the importance of having a healthy body image amid social media pressures.

The seminar took place over three days (May 5–7, 2026) at Jakarta Public High 55 (SMAN 55 Jakarta), Perguruan Cikini High (SMA Perguruan Cikini), and Fatahillah High (SMA Fatahillah).

In the lecture addressed to tenth and eleventh-grade students, the Foundation focused on raising awareness on the multiple factors shaping self-worth: physical health, mental well-being, and innate ability (in addition to physical appearance). Today's teenagers view themselves through a “digital mirror” distorted by social media filters, heavily-edited visuals, and warped beauty standards — making this information more needed than ever.

Madina Mazaya, a SMAN 55 Jakarta student, agreed. “In this age of social media, confidence is continually challenged by [beauty] filters and body standards.”

But self-evaluations shouldn't rely only on personal perception, said seminar speaker Ms. Hillga Tiara Dewi. Teenagers experience growth spurts differently, “so [medically] they have different growth charts to track height and weight. [What's considered] ideal in these charts is determined by nutritional needs, not feelings,” added the puskesmas nutritionist.

Photo: Korindo Foundation works with the Pancoran District's puskesmas (state-run clinic) on “Redefining Beauty: Health Over Perfection”, a seminar about body image across three Jakartan high schools.

Teaching body positivity is central to changing negative self-image, which remains an issue for many young people despite their healthy body mass indices (BMI). Effects from negative body image include irregular eating patterns, the use of growth-harming weight loss supplements, and other extreme actions aimed at slimming down.

For Ms. Hillga, this collaborative event by Korindo Foundation and the Pancoran District puskesmas marks a step towards broader health awareness, especially on things like body image and ways to prevent unhealthy behavior.

It's also relatable to the current generation of teenagers, praised SMAN 55 Jakarta counselor Mila Chaerunisa. “We're thrilled with the collaborative effort that brought this seminar on body image. We hope it helps the students see how physical and mental health are as important as appearance.”

With this initiative, Korindo Foundation is expected to continue supporting health education and character-building efforts, including those centered on cultivating self-acceptance, healthy habits, and self-confidence in academic settings. (PR)

Their participation demonstrates collective effort to improve local environmental quality and create greener, more sustainable public spaces.

Korintiga Hutani Takes Part in 10,000-Tree Planting Initiative

PALANGKA RAYA – On Monday (4/20/2026), PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH) saw its Eucalyptus pellita seedlings rooted at the Bundaran Besar Palangkaraya by the Human Settlements Division of Central Kalimantan's Department of Public Works and Housing (PUPR). These seedlings were earlier donated to the department for the 10,000-tree planting campaign.

Present alongside KTH representatives were the local PUPR leader Mr. Juni Gultom and his officials, who took part in the planting. Mr. Gultom gave a speech at the ceremony, thanking the company.

"This campaign is proof of our commitment to environmental preservation, air quality improvement, and sustainable development for a greener, healthier future," Mr. Gultom said. "We'd like to express our appreciation for PT Korintiga Hutani, whose contribution has been invaluable."

It's an initiative that not only symbolizes reforestation, but also thoughtfully addresses climate change and urbanization issues. By working together, the local public and private sectors create strong synergy that helps maintain the ecosystem balance and enhance quality of life in communities.

This seedling donation is part of KTH's efforts to promote urban greening, improve environmental quality, and establish lush, comfortable public spaces that also last long, said KTH's Public Relations staff member Mr. Maarif.

"We believe environmental sustainability is a shared responsibility. Through this seedling donation, we hope to provide long-term benefits to people in Palangkaraya and help create a greener city."

KTH is using this initiative to drive ongoing public-private collaborations on preservation. This move aligns with a commitment to advancing environmentally-conscious regional development and better community well-being in the place it operates. (Humas)

Photo: The event is a way to share goodness and help the needy. By participating, employees support blood availability while showing compassion and humanity.

Korindo Foundation Ignites Compassion through Blood Drive

JAKARTA – Korindo Foundation secured 115 blood bags from its employee blood drive Tuesday (6/23/2026) at Wisma Korindo, Jakarta. “A Simple Act, A Lifesaving Impact” was held in partnership with the Depok branch of the Indonesian Red Cross (PMI Depok).

It initially attracted 137 sign-ups, of whom 22 were later declared unfit to donate. Reasons revolved around physical condition, such as blood pressure issues and abnormal hemoglobin (Hb) levels.

This event is a regular initiative at Korindo Group, enabling staff to contribute socially while maintaining physical fitness, said Korindo Foundation’s general manager, Mr. Setiyono.

“We want to encourage employees to make a real impact as they help others. We hope this initiative supports both the health of the recipients and donors.”

Corporate blood drives play a crucial role in ensuring the high demand for blood supplies is met, said PMI Depok representative dr. Xenilitiurahmi Rimadeirani. The Indonesian Red Cross can’t rely solely on donations from the public.

“Partnerships with companies, like this one, greatly help with maintaining blood availability. It’s not enough to only depend on non-employee donors.”

The event had early blood pressure and hemoglobin screening, which was mandatory to ensure blood quality and safety.

Having passed both tests, fifth-time donor Ms. Dwijayanti Kusmayni shared her reason for donating. “I feel much healthier after doing it. I also hope my donation will benefit the person receiving it.” (PR)

Korintiga Hutani Plants for the Future, Intensifies Climate Mitigation Efforts

CENTRAL KALIMANTAN – PT Korintiga Hutani (KTH) leveraged the occasion of World Environment Day to launch a tree-planting campaign across its operational locations.

Hundreds of seedlings were set in the ground on Monday (6/29/2026), with varieties ranging from mangrove, cempedak, and durian to mulberry. Participants included the company's management, especially Chip Mill Division Director Mr. Gapyoung Song, staff members, and partners.

"World Environment Day is more than a ceremony. It's a reminder that every tree we plant today is an investment in the climate and [in the future] for the sake of our children and grandchildren," said Mr. Song. "We believe the industry and environment must grow together."

Empowered by the slogan "Time to Work for the Climate" (Saatnya Bekerja untuk Iklim), KTH doubled down on its role as an industrial plantation forest company that's responsible for environmental sustainability and climate change mitigation.

This year's planting event forms part of a long-term commitment to increasing green cover, safeguarding biodiversity, and supporting Indonesia's progress toward its emissions-reduction targets. That Monday, participants were seen wearing KTH and Oji safety helmets, which symbolize an alignment with OSH and sustainability principles.

"Time to Work for the Climate" means taking tangible actions to initiate environmental change, said KTH executive Mr. Budi Pitaya. These actions are planting, caring for, and preserving forest areas.

"We are committed to implementing sustainability throughout our supply chain. This planting event [also] reflects our core values: empowerment, harmony, and abundance, both for the local ecosystems and the people. One tree today, a better forest tomorrow."

PT Korintiga Hutani will continue its land rehabilitation and environmental education programs for its immediate communities in 2026.

The company sees protecting the environment as beyond its responsibility — to KTH, it's an ongoing work to ensure natural resources remain available for use by future generations. (HUMAS)

Korindo Foundation Surpasses a Decade of Stunting Prevention

Photo: Korindo Foundation's General Manager Mr. Setiyono presents a nutrition kit to a pregnant woman in Pancoran, showing support for local mothers, their babies, and their nutritional needs during the first 1,000 days of life.

JAKARTA – Korindo Foundation has again teamed up with the Pancoran District puskesmas on stunting prevention. A seminar and a nutrition kit distribution ceremony were held last Tuesday (6/30/2026) at the puskesmas as part of the Foundation's Corporate Social Contribution (CSC) initiative.

It's everyone's responsibility to ensure children grow normally, said Korindo Foundation's General Manager, Mr. Setiyono. This responsibility requires consistent support for and participation in preventive work.

"Thank you, the Pancoran District puskesmas, for the opportunity to work together. [We need to] mitigate this condition early, as early as the prenatal period through proper nutrition," Mr. Setiyono added.

Stunting prevention has been a focus of Korindo Foundation since 2016, when supplemental food assistance was first given to 30 posyandus (maternal and child health services) in Pancoran District. The Foundation distributed milk, biscuits, mung bean porridge, boiled eggs, and sliced fruit for toddler consumption, and added extra quantities specifically for children with very low weight — or who are categorized as "below the red line" on their growth charts.

This initiative continued throughout and after the pandemic in partnership with the Pancoran District puskesmas. Between 2021 and 2023, there were regular donations of supplementary meal ingredients and online seminars on the dangers and early detection of stunted growth for Family Welfare Movement (PKK) and Dasawisma cadres.

In 2024, "nutrition kits" for pregnant mothers featuring mung beans, palm sugar, milk, pregnancy biscuits, and fresh eggs were launched and delivered across six subdistricts within Pancoran District. These kits were continuously provided for four consecutive months, as recommended by the Ministry of Health.

Each kit, tailored to fulfil 70% of the mothers' additional daily nutritional requirements, has helped those with chronic energy deficiency (CED) increase their weight from below-average levels.

CED is a nutritional issue stemming from long-term imbalance between energy intake and expenditure and is marked by an upper arm circumference below 23.5 cm. It carries the risks of difficult labor, premature birth, bleeding during delivery, anemia, and even maternal death — making the kits highly valuable to the beneficiaries. "This nutrition kit has been incredibly helpful in meeting my pregnancy dietary needs. I hope this kind of support continues so more mothers can benefit from it and their babies can grow up healthy," said kit recipient Afifah Nur Aina.

More than an aid program, Korindo Foundation's initiative is a reminder that preventing stunting starts with enough dietary intake, proper education, and community support. The Foundation hopes that its work with the Pancoran District puskesmas can improve the effectiveness and sustainability of stunting preventive measures, thereby ushering in a healthier, better-equipped generation of Indonesians. (PR)

Korindo Group's Planting Initiatives Cultivate a Greener Future

TANGERANG – A 500-tree planting event at Sodong Village's agritourism area concluded Korindo Group's celebration for the 2026 World Environment Day. Earlier, similar initiatives had been rolled out in other locations, spearheaded by the Group's subsidiaries.

These locations included the operational areas of each subsidiary, zones designated for rehabilitation (with planting done in collaboration with local governments), as well as places outside Korindo Group's territories. Around thousands of seedlings were planted, including those of eucalyptus, mangrove, and multiple fruit species.

Korindo Foundation's Secretary-General, Mr. Sunghoon Lee, said on Wednesday (7/15/2026) that this celebration aims to cultivate healthier, more sustainable environments rather than be purely symbolic.

It also shows that Korindo Group is maintaining its commitment to nature preservation.

"Planting trees isn't just about increasing green spaces. Every tree creates a healthier environment," Mr. Lee stated. "Collaborations like this one are integral to achieving sustainable neighborhoods that benefit our children and grandchildren. The small steps we take today will make a difference for the future."

This year, Korindo Group embeds the spirit of World Environment Day in its eco-actions, which help the company strengthen its contributions to climate resilience, curb the impacts of pollution, and safeguard local biodiversity through sustainable means.

Besides improving the environment, the planting events encourage climate mitigation across the organization, with measures tailored to the characteristics of each location. Through these initiatives, Korindo Group emphasizes that nature preservation is a collective responsibility met through concrete actions.

The company hopes that every seedling it plants will grow to offer ecological benefits, and demonstrate its promise to create greener and healthier spaces for future generations. (PR)

Korindo Heavy Industry-Sodong Village Collaboration Aims to Strengthen Agri-Ecotourism with 500-Tree Planting Event

TANGERANG – Together with the Sodong Village government and community, PT Korindo Heavy Industry (KHI) planted 500 tree seedlings at the village's agritourism area in Tigaraksa District, Tangerang Regency, on Wednesday (7/15/2026). The event held in honor of World Environment Day is part of a joint initiative to strengthen environmental sustainability and support the development of Sodong's agri-edutourism establishment.

A wide range of tree varieties — eucalyptus, longan, avocado, mango, trembesi (rain tree), and West Indian mahogany — will cover the six-hectare site that is being developed as a green space and a nature-based educational destination.

Present on the day were Korindo Foundation's Secretary-General Mr. Sunghoon Lee, KHI's General Manager Mr. Sunwoo Hyun, Sodong Village chief Mr. Doni Bambang Priangga, local community leaders, Sodong's female farmer group, and several agricultural experts from Tangerang Regency.

Secretary-General Lee said the planting demonstrates Korindo Group's support for the environment, as well as its effort to address three main environmental issues: climate change, biodiversity loss, and pollution.

"Planting trees isn't just about increasing green spaces. Every tree creates a healthier environment," Mr. Lee stated. "Collaborations like this one are integral to achieving sustainable neighborhoods that benefit our children and grand children."

Echoing this sentiment, KHI's General Manager Mr. Sunwoo Hyun hopes to maintain the company's partnership with Sodong Village through various environmental preservation and community empowerment programs.

For Mr. Hyun, the synergy among businesses, village governments, and local communities provides the groundwork for sustainable development — and impact on current and future generations.

"I hope this [planting] isn't our last project together, but a start to many more shared initiatives. May the seedlings we donate today be useful for everyone here and the local ecosystem."

Sodong Village sees this donation as proof of Korindo Group's trust in its capacity to collaborate and build the community through preservation work.

"Today, Sodong welcomes Korindo [Group], which, through Ayo Menanam, brings trust and collaboration [and allows us] to build our village," said Sodong Village chief, Mr. Doni Bambang Priangga. "For us, these seedlings are more than support. They're an investment in community empowerment and village resilience."

Onwards, the village government is committed to maintaining the trees, which ensures their optimal development and long-term benefits for the residents. Mr. Doni believed that Sodong's agri-edutourism can continue to grow, serving locals and protecting ecosystem balance.

This 500-tree planting ceremony will further Sodong's efforts towards a green, sustainable future. As a public-private-community collaboration, it shows that shared dedication is central to environmental preservation and enables its impacts to be felt in the present and future.

Honai* and Ebei: How Papuan Societies Delineate Gender Roles

Amidst the mountainous landscape of Papua, stand round, thatched-roof houses, which at first glance may remind you of mushrooms due to their low, spherical shape.

With only one door and no windows, they look unassuming — yet are full of warmth and stories. These are actually two separate structures, known as honai and ebei (or ebe ae), which appear similar but hold different functions.

The honai is the “men’s house”, where clan members rest, discuss matters, and make community decisions. The ebei is the “women’s house”, which is closely associated with daily domestic activities.

This distinction reflects the enduring division of roles in Papuan societies, particularly among the Dani, Lani, and Yali tribes, whose members primarily live in Highland Papua.

Meanwhile, honai and ebei's unique design is a clever adaptation to the cold, windy mountain environment. Both buildings contain sleeping areas and a hearth that provides warmth and enables various activities.

In Soroba Village — part of Kurulu District, Jayawijaya Regency, Highland Papua — tourists can experience firsthand the local way of life by staying in a honai or ebei for around Rp 250,000 per night. This place preserves an authentic atmosphere, from the honai and ebei's low-slung ceilings and “crawl-only” spaces, direct exposure to Soroba locals, to the residents’ rhythm of life, which flows in harmony with nature.

The best time to visit this region is during the Baliem Valley Festival in August, which features tribal war reenactments, traditional dances, and cultural performances showcasing the rich heritage of Papua's highland communities. At this annual event, honai and ebei serve as more than mere backdrops; they become living parts of the tradition on display.

Here in the Korindo History Museum (Wisma Korindo, 14th floor), you can find their miniatures, alongside those of South Sulawesi's tongkonan and Dayak tribe's lamin, in a carefully curated collection of traditional house replicas.

Together, they provide a glimpse into Indonesia's rich cultural and architectural diversity, while strengthening awareness of local heritage preservation.
